Line is Over Six Miles Long and Takes Hour to Pass Given Point.

REVIEWED BY KING GEORGE

English Monarch Stands on Steps of Buckingham Palace to Receive Salutes of Troops; 4,000 Widows, Mothers and Children in the Crowd.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 19.—Nineteen thousand Allied soldiers—picked men from famous combat divisions, the names of which are written large on the pages of history of the world war—marched through London streets today in celebration of the return of peace. The line of parade was more than six miles in length and required over an hour to pass a given point.

King George and other members of the royal family, army and navy officers and leaders of both houses of parliament stood on the steps of the Victoria memorial in front of Buckingham palace to receive the salutes of the warriors. A magnificent reception was given the marching hosts. The streets were bright with Allied colors. Spectators jammed every point of vantage, even the roofs being blocked with cheering thousands.

Among those who witnessed the parade were 4,000 widows, mothers and children of officers and men killed during the war.

WILSON PLEASED

Likes Attitude of Republican Senators on League.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—President Wilson's advisers said today he was highly pleased with the attitude of Republican Senators with whom he has conferred on the peace treaty and the League of Nations covenant. He also was said to feel that the conference at the White House had cleared up many doubtful points in the minds of the Senators he had seen. The President had no appointments today but expected to see more Republican Senators Monday and in the days following. He has conferred with seven Senators since sending out his invitations to them to come to the White House and hopes to see practically all of them before starting on his tour of the country. The President was also considering a short trip down the Potomac to the Mayflower over Sunday. It was said that but for the necessity of remaining here to confer with Senators the President would have gone to Hampton Roads to review the Pacific fleet before its departure.

Canastota Italian With Guns in Possession Arrested.

Antonio Harmony, an Italian, was turned over to Alderman Fred Munk today and will get a hearing tonight, charged with being an alien in the possession of firearms. He was arrested by the Baltimore & Ohio police, who searched his house for goods stolen from the railroad.

The officers in their search found two revolvers, a rifle and a shot gun. They did not find any goods of value. He was held, however, for being in possession of the firearms.

TO VISIT SCOUTS

Many County Persons Expected at Camp Wildwood.

Many persons are expected to make the trip to Camp Wildwood, where the Boy Scouts of this city are having their outing at White Bridge, on Tuesday, which is designated as County Day. Members of the local council of scouts, a number of mothers and invited guests from various parts of the county will attend.

The party will leave here at 8:25 o'clock Tuesday morning and return at 5:40 o'clock. Connection with the Baltimore & Ohio trains will be made at Indian Creek.

The County Day plan was originated by the local council of Connellsville to interest men from other parts of Fayette in the scout movement. This organization had grown rapidly in the city during the past year, and it is the desire of local persons to see it gain a foothold elsewhere in the county. Uniontown is organized only on a small scale and Dunbar has one troop. Otherwise the scout work has not gone very far. Men from Dawson, Perryopolis, Uniontown, Smithfield, Fairchance and all other communities in Fayette have been asked to go to the camp on Tuesday and hear Scouting defined by a national field scout worker.

It is felt that if sufficient troops can be organized in Fayette county a field executive might be engaged.

JONES' CHARGES MEET A VIGOROUS DENIAL BY STRAWN

Receiver of Defunct Uniontown Bank Defends Himself and Superior.

HE QUOTES F. E. MARKELL

As an Authority on the Value of the "Sky Scaper" Building; Declares Jones Made Threats if Comptroller Did Not Issue Order to U. S. Court.

The charge made by Attorney A. E. Jones of Uniontown before the Senate Banking and Currency committee, that Comptroller of the Currency John Skelton Williams, had failed to administer the affairs of the First National bank of Uniontown to the best interests of the stockholders, was vigorously denied yesterday by Receiver John H. Strawn and his attorney, John S. Wendt of Pittsburgh.

In his statement before the committee Receiver Strawn, as related by Robert M. Glavin, the Washington correspondent of the Pittsburgh Gazette Times, aroused the interest of the committee in acquiring it with the fact that sometime prior to the bank's failure Comptroller Williams had advanced to Thompson over $400,000 in emergency currency under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act.

When the bank was closed by the board of directors owing to their inability to secure additional funds with which to operate, $1,800 in cash remained in its vaults, although the bank books showed deposits of $100,000. The difference, Receiver Strawn said, represented cash pocketed by Mr. Thompson who in his place deposited checks in the cash drawer. Failure of the bank, the receiver said, was due principally to distrust on the part of the depositors, who withdrew their money as the emergency currency was quickly exhausted. It was not exactly a run on the bank, he added, however, declaring this had been in process for months.

Contentions raised by Mr. Jones that appraisals showed the bank building to be worth about $1,300,000 were denied by Mr. Strawn, who said if there had been any such appraisal "that it must have been made by somebody procured by Jones, for no appraiser would say the building was worth more than it had been carried on the books."

In order to substantiate his statements, Mr. Strawn filed with the committee an affidavit made by F. E. Markell, president of the Citizens National bank of Connellsville, who said $700,000, received for the building, was "fully adequate and a very good price."

Receiver Strawn stated that the total losses charged off were $200,000 instead of $2,000,000 as alleged by Jones. He also told of a visit recently made to his office by Jones, whom he charged with threatening to appear before the Senate committee unless the comptroller gave him a letter informing the Federal District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania, and having jurisdiction of the receivership, that it should order the payments of Mr. Thompson's indebtedness. This the comptroller said he declined to do.

Attorney Jones declared the sale had been made over the protest of various stockholders of the bank and the day before the building was sold a public meeting was held at which a resolution was adopted advising against the sale of the property. The substance of the resolution was telegraphed to Comptroller Williams, but the sale was carried out as advertised.

Concerning the appraisement of the property Mr. Jones told the committee two different men had inspected it, that one had appraised it at $1,020,000 and another at $1,870,000.

SECRETARY MAY TO SECURE VICTORY BUTTONS FOR CITY SERVICE MEN NEXT TUESDAY

Discharge Certificates Should Be Presented to B. & O. Y. M. C. A. Official.

Discharged service men in the Connellsville district who have not received their silver or bronze Victory buttons may secure them next week through W. H. May, demobilization secretary of the Baltimore & Ohio Y. M. C. A. Mr. May will go to Pittsburgh on Tuesday to secure buttons for all who present their discharge certificates to him prior to his departure. The discharges will have to be left with him so that he can present them to the Pittsburgh recruiting officers.

Bronze buttons are issued to all discharged soldiers except those whose discharges contain records of their having been wounded in action. These receive silver ones.

Mr. May has been urged by the Treasury Department to conduct a campaign among discharged men for the purpose of preventing them from dropping their War Risk insurance. "There is only one reason why any service man will let his government insurance drop," says one letter from the department. "He does not understand its value to him. There is one reason and only one why the government is going to stay in the life insurance business—to fulfill its promise of protection to the men who offered their services and their lives in the great war."

Mr. May will be informed of all changes in government insurance policies and rates and he will be in position to give much information to soldiers who are considering converting their insurance to some other form. He asks all who are thinking of dropping their insurance to see him first and then think it over again.

Discharged men may retain their government insurance for five years in its present form before converting it, if they make payments promptly. The rate increases 10 cents each year, however.

Publication in The Courier of items concerning the Service Secretary May is equipped to give on many matters of importance to the service men have brought numerous inquiries, he reports.

EVERYONE SWEETENS

Those Who Formerly Took to River Kept Away by Muddy Water.

With the mercury still hovering around the 90 mark and the river muddy, many Connellsville people who would otherwise take to the cool water have to suffer the heat this week. Although some have gone bathing without regard to the muddy water others prefer a clear river, and as a result the beach at Connellsville has only a few patrons.

In the past hot weeks there has been an unusually heavy attendance at the "beach," hundreds of persons going there. The rains which fell early this week have practically made this avenue of relief impossible.

First Lieutenant William H. Meyers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Meyers, who has been spending a 20-day leave of absence here, leaves tomorrow for his station at Camp Travis, Tex., where he has been serving with the 35th Infantry of the Regular Army. His family will remain here until it is determined how the reorganization of the Army will affect officers receiving commissions from civil life during the war.

WHITE MAN SLAPS COLORED LADY IN SCRAP OVER SEAT ON CAR; THEN THINGS HAPPEN

Things happened quickly on a late last night when a white man slapped a colored lady during an altercation over a seat. The negroess, giving her name as Freda Nolan, was arrested by Patrolman Rull, who was on the car, and is being held here. A negro who became involved in the excitement, jumped head first from a car window and escaped. The excitement began about 11:30, shortly after 11 o'clock, and lasted until Connellsville was reached.

The street car was crowded with persons returning from Uniontown. An argument over possession of a seat occupied by the Nolan woman and her husband began. The white man, a Uniontown resident, and his wife were standing. When they prepared to leave at Bitter stop, the feeling again

BIG PARADE FEATURE OF UNIONTOWN'S HOME COMING CELEBRATION

Many Service Men in Line; Lack of Bands Proves to Be Big Drawback.

Military Day, the feature of Uniontown's own welcome home celebration came off successfully yesterday. A big parade of soldiers, sailors and marines, nurses and welfare organizations, together with labor and fraternal organizations was conducted during the afternoon and band concerts and a fireworks display of unusual beauty provided entertainment during the evening. A great crowd was on hand.

Many people from this end of the county viewed the parade and enjoyed the evening events.

"How did the parade compare with Connellsville's?" some of them were asked.

The answer was pretty much in the same tenor. It was a "very nice parade," with probably a larger number of service men in line, but it was by no means as long and with only a few bands to provide marching music something was lacking. The line took about 40 minutes to pass a given point, some said.

About 40 Connellsville service men participated. A detachment of Company D, 110th Infantry, of Connellsville led off, with 29th and 32nd men following. About 100 colored troops formed one section of the service men's division.

Among the features were: The Fayette County Red Cross Auxiliary float, the Second Presbyterian Red Cross Unit, the colored Red Cross Auxiliary, the Taylor Red Cross Auxiliary of Oliver, the Needle Workers Guild of America, the Salvation Army, B. P. O. Elks float, one of the largest in the parade; Knights of Columbus float, in which there were a number of women canteen workers who saw service "over there." F. O. E. Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, Daughters of America, Parvett Council No. 49, Daughters of the American Revolution, Loyal Order of Moose No. 20, with the Women's Moosehead Legion and the big float which led the Uniontown Firemen's organization.

The Connellsville Military band's spirited music met with applause along the line.

FOREST FIRES SPREAD IN NORTHWEST DESPITE EFFORTS OF 3,000 MEN

Hundreds of Millions of Feet Burned and Three Small Towns Threatened.

By Associated Press.

SPOKANE, July 19.—Forest fires which have been burning for more than a week over an area of several hundred square miles in northern Idaho and western Montana continued to spread today although 3,000 men were fighting the flames. Hundreds of millions of feet of standing timber has been burned and at least three small towns in Montana were threatened with destruction. A report early today stated that Gilt Edge, a hamlet east of Lewistown, Mont., was menaced by the flames. Another report said Albion, 20 miles west of Missoula, was safe for the time but not out of danger.

At Port Hill, Idaho, on the Canadian line, where American fire fighters crossed the international boundary to check the blaze which threatened a valuable stand of timber the Americans were aided by shifting of the wind which turned the flames back on 10,000 acres already burned over.

NEW FREIGHT RATES

On New Iron From Sligo Plant Are Proposed by Pennsylvania Railroad.

At the meeting of the Pittsburgh District Freight Traffic committee of the United States Railroad Administration to be held in Pittsburgh July 25, a petition of the Pennsylvania Railroad company for a change in the rates on new iron from Sligo Iron & Steel company at Davidson will be considered.

The proposed rates of $3.80 to New York; $3.50 to Philadelphia, and $3.40 to Baltimore are requested in order to place the rates on the same basis as now in effect on other lines between the same points.

At the same time a reduction of 7 1/2 cents per ton will be asked on the rate for old broken stone from Blairsville to Antrim, Maxwell and Edenborn in the Lower Connellsville district. The present rate to Antrim and Edenborn is 14 cents; to Maxwell, 15 cents.

EARLY CLOSE OF MILITIA CAMP IS CAUSED BY RAINS

Company G Arrives Home From Mount Gretna Day Ahead of Schedule.

COMMAND COMPLIMENTED

Makes Good Showing and Expected to Be Among Leaders When Ratings Are Made; Governor Sproul Sets up Ice Cream for the Entire Brigade.

On account of heavy rains which spoiled the field program for Friday camp of the Pennsylvania Reserve Militia at Mount Gretna was broken in the afternoon instead of this morning and at 8:30 A. M. today, Company G, Connellsville's unit in the regiment, arrived home. The boys unloaded equipment at the armory and were then allowed to go to their homes until Monday night.

The company arrived unannounced, coming in a special train from Greensburg, where the baggage coaches and two cars were detached from the troop train and brought over the southwest branch. It had not been the plan to break camp until Saturday, which would have brought the militiamen home that night. Rain Friday interfered with the program, however, and at 9 o'clock P. M. the company started for home.

Company G was highly complimented by the staff officers and members believe it will be among the highest rated units in the regiment.

Every member of Company G returned home. John Venersky became ill Friday but he was able to travel and was again fit this morning.

One new member was added to the company at Mount Gretna. It is described by First Sergeant List as "a fine young cat." The fellow was "captured" in the company street, adopted and named "Co. G."

Monday night the men will report at the armory for a short drill. It is expected that the "ghost will walk" at that time although no official word has yet been received to this effect.

TO REBUILD ROAD

State Asks Bids on Stretch Between Flatwoods and Vanderbilt.

Bids have been asked by the State Highway Department for the reconstruction of 5,500 feet of road between Vanderbilt and Flatwoods. This is part of the program for improving the highway from this city to Pittsburgh through Vanderbilt, Perryopolis and Fayette City.

The contract calls for a brick roadway 16 feet wide, and with the completion of this work it will just be one more link added to the chain of highway already improved. Surveyors have gone over the entire course and the preliminary work to making it an ideal roadway is complete.

There is a stretch of unimproved road to present which lies over Lime-stone hill and extends to the foot of the "S" curve near the Smith Patterson farm. From that point through to Vanderbilt the road is macadamized. The improvements to be made this fall will connect with the good road between Flatwoods and Perryopolis.

With the completion of the new highway to Pittsburgh much traffic will be diverted over that route. At present most travel is via Mount Pleasant, Greensburg and the Lincoln highway.

EARLY CLOSE OF MILITIA

CAMP IS CAUSED BY RAINS

Governor Sprout visited the camps this morning on a tour of inspection, but tonight at mess was when the men really found out the real meaning of "governor's day." Five gallons of ice cream was furnished to every company in the brigade, with the governor's compliments—and that meant a double order for every one. As a consequence, Governor Sprout is easily the most popular man in this camp tonight.

Major E. V. Babcock of Pittsburg is a guest of Governor Sprout today at the camp. This evening Major Babcock is attending the dance at the Conewago hotel with our Major Meyer.

Chaplain Barlowe of the Third Regiment dropped into our mess tent today at noon unannounced, and sat down among the boys and took "pot luck." Chaplain Barlowe is a good fellow and well liked among the boys. When at home his residence is in Homestead. He is acquainted with Rev. Barlowe of Uniontown who was overseas in the world war and acquitted himself so nobly.

Fifteen rounds of ammunition (blanks) were issued to the battalion this morning and a realistic sham battle was staged with a machine gun nest or two in the firing to add spice. Company G had rather a rough sector allotted to it, but we were highly commended for the tactics we employed, after the skirmish was over. Sergeant "Lover" Moore is having

A SPORTS PROOK

Vivid pink crash was used for this night's up-and-down costume that is so simple in line. A practical feature is the way it is fastened just below the underwear seam to make the skirt into a perfectly straight, pleat avoiding any cause for sagging at the sides as is the tendency of many frocks of this sort. Dark olive drab worsted works a design on back and front.

difficulties. In the first place, he wore the soles through on his only pair of army shoes trying to get a girl down at Mount Gretna park. This morning he requisitioned the Q. M. for a new pair and as there was nothing but a pair of 1914's left, he took them. Consequently when the command "halt" would come today, "Lover" would halt—but would slide forward a half-inch in his new shoes and get bawled out. In the skirmish this morning, "Lover" was commanding the second platoon and when there was no other cover available for his men he would lay down, with his shoes to the front, and the platoon would seek refuge behind them from the barrage laid down by the "enemy."

The coming of the mail bag is eagerly awaited by the boys and if all the letters come that privates ask for the company street wouldn't hold them. A frequent inquiry heard daily in the camp is "Has The Courier come yet?" And when it does the boys form a waiting list for their turn to read about what is doing in Conneltsville.

Company A had bad luck today. Four of their men were taken to the hospital with ptomaine poisoning this evening.

Sergeant Alonzo M. Krepps acted as platoon runner and scout in yesterday's skirmish, and also kept up the line of communication between the captain and the major. Krepps says either the P. M. should furnish roller skates or keep his officers closer together, as he calls fifty times a day.

"Colonel" Albert F. Sliger, familiarly known as the "big boy" of the company and a private in the first squad, has reported sick again. First it was his feet and then his arms and then something else. There is so much of Sliger to get out of order that he has a hard time of it.

First Lieutenant Kent B. Clifton will be officer of the day for the guard the last 24 hours in camp. Company G is also furnishing three corporals and four privates. The guard for the last night has been doubled, which would seem to indicate that it will be a tight camp, but if former encampments are any criterion to go by, the lid will come off tomorrow night if it has to be forced.

MAN WHO DOESN'T GROW UP

Just What Is Wrong With Individual Who Fails to "Keep Up With the Progression."

Insufficient occupation and the consciousness of not being of much use nearly always explain the man who does not grow up. There may have been a period in his life when he was an admired ornament of society, when his cleverness was applauded, when his violent assertions and rash criticisms and absurd resentments were listened to as the outpourings of an interesting and awakening mind and were valued perhaps for some facility in utterance; but the mind has not matured, perhaps because it never was forced to grapple with anything vital, and the facility in utterance that was a charm in youth has dwindled with years to peevish flattery in objection, censure and condemnation. The man who at twenty-five is still a dabbler, with a faculty for raising a laugh by his trite and disparaging remarks of the achievements of grown men, is likely at sixty to be complaining of the cooking and the weather, the high prices and the policy of the administration—or living only for the purpose of expressing his discontent with the universe.

A man needs time in which to grow up, but if he does not fertilize time with work he will be only the weed of a man. Youth's Companion.

There's a Reason

BOTH HOUSES ARE BUSY THIS SUMMER

CONGRESS HAS BEEN WORKING OVERTIME ON LEGISLATION THAT WAS PRESSING

HAD TO PASS MONEY BILLS

Republicans Will Investigate the War Expenditures and Are Debating How Far They Should Go in Revising the Tariff

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington—Because of the pre-dominant interest which attaches to it, the controversy over the League of Nations to a considerable extent has obscured other doings in congress. The house and senate are both busy bodies today and possibly there are some canonic ones who might suggest that "busy bodies" be made into one word.

Such a suggestion, however, in all fairness, would be out of place. Congress is working hard today. There was an immense amount of work to be done in June because many of the appropriation bills were left over for action from the last session, the reason being, the Democrats will tell you, because the Republicans refused so many extraneous issues that the supply bills were blocked, while the Democrats will tell you that the Democrats did not have energy enough to put them through. Take your choice.

The thing which remains is that the two houses literally had to work overtime all through June in order to get the necessary money bills into shape. If these measures had not been put through, Uncle Sam would not have had money enough to his credit properly to celebrate the Fourth of July in his own behalf.

The Republicans are in an investigating mood. They have a committee of fifteen appointed by the house of representatives to investigate the war expenditures. The Republicans charge that the administration spent more money than was necessary in prosecuting the war. Denial of this charge is forthcoming daily in congress. Investigation, however, will go on and it is certain to develop some interesting facts and figures, even if it is inconclusive in its results so far as the specific reason for the investigation is concerned.

Our old friend Pearl Buttons is occupying, or is about to occupy, the attention of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives. Pearl Buttons is not, as one possibly might think, an appealing human creature with a slight rosy flush. Pearl buttons are a commodity of trade and the ways and means committee is going into the industry in order to revise the tariff, touching merchandise articles. Pearl buttons have figured in every tariff revision since revision was heard of.

There was a long discussion among Republican leaders concerning the nature of the tariff revision which the majority in congress should attempt to undertake. The first suggestion was that a complete tariff bill should be written, even though the chance that after its enactment it would be signed by the president of the United States was remote.

Some of the Republican leaders urged a complete tariff bill in order to put the party on record and to let the country know just what it is intended to do. If the Republican party shall come into complete control of the government on March 4, 1921, other leaders suggested that only a partial revision of the tariff should be attempted. This counsel was followed with the result that the ways and means committee of the house now is holding hearings on revision of some of the present tariff rates. It is expected by the majority that the president will sign the bill, because the intention is to confine the revisions to such conditions as have appeared for remedy to both political parties.

Universal Training Sidelined. It will be some time probably before the majority in congress will take up the question of universal military training. Next year is a presidential year and the leaders of both parties are studying the question of military training with a view of determining definitely if they can, how the people generally look on compulsory field exercise for eight to ten months a year for the youth of the nation.

It is said that a poll of several divisions in France on the subject of military training for the youth of the land was made with a generally affirmative response. The soldiers overseas, and those who have returned, realized of course how much they have been benefited by outdoor exercise, good food, regular hours and the necessary discipline. It also must be remembered that these men have had their training and will not be compelled to undergo it again. So it is that there was removed from the soldier who expressed themselves on the subject the consideration that any law which might be passed would affect them.

One reason for the close study of the questions of future preparedness and of military training is the desire, of the leaders of both parties, to know what they shall write about these matters in the national convention platforms next June. Congress is feeling its way in both these things of high import.

A Correction. We recently advertised in The Courier "B V D Style Union Suits." This was an error. The B V D company having complained of this use of their trade mark, these suits are not B V D goods, we wish to say that hereafter, so that the public may receive the right service, we will only offer to the trade mark B V D to advertise goods bearing the red woven B V D label. We have no desire to infringe in any way on the B V D company's trade mark rights. Surprise Store.

PHYSICAL TRAINING MANDATORY UPON ALL SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Bill Signed by Governor Sprout Makes Amendment to the School Code; Dental Inspection Provided.

The physical training in all the elementary public schools is made mandatory upon the school districts through the provisions of the Hicknell bill signed by Governor Sprout on Thursday.

This bill provides that the course in physical training and ethics is to be added to the elementary schools and that instruction "conducive to the spirit of loyalty and devotion to the state and national governments" shall also be placed on the school curriculum.

The Armstrong bill provides for an increase from $1 to not more than $5 in the school tax in second third and fourth-class districts, and so amends the present school laws relative to medical inspection and such inspection is made mandatory and not left to the vote of the school directors. The bill also provides for the inspection of teeth.

HEINIE ZIMMERMAN IS GOING STRONG

Veteran Has Stood Strain of Eleven Seasons With Majors.

Prediction of Various Scribes That He Would Be Displaced at Third Base Not Yet Fulfilled—Slow in Rounding Into Form.

After a player has stood the gaff in the major leagues for eleven years he is labeled "all in" the first time he shows a sign of slipping.

This was the sort of a "rawberry" handed to Heinie Zim in 1917 even before he got himself into the limelight in the world's series by chasing Eddie Collins home in that now famous Marathon of 90 feet, which was promptly pointed out as a one-reel thriller and given the title "I'm a Fast er Man Than You Are, Heinie Zim."

Last fall after the Giants had closed their curtailed season, various scribes predicted that 1919 would find somebody else filling the shoes of the great Zim at third base for the Giants.

New York scribes led the gang who expertly pointed out that the great one was on the skids, that his legs were growing stiff and his throwing arm turning to glass. Then they started picking out a soft spot for Heinie to light. Some chose first base for him, and the ones who were less hopeful relegated him to right field, just as though John McGraw would think for half a second of displacing a crack young player like Ross Young.

Heinie kept his pace through all the long winter of 1918-19, hibernating in the Bronx and saying nothing. But when the time rolled around for contracts to be signed Zim visited the offices of the Giants, accepted terms without a whisper and calmly told McGraw that if he had ordered a new third baseman he'd better cancel the order.

When the Giants entrained for Gainesville to start spring training the veteran Zim was very much in evidence. He got into a uniform and started sawing wood in his own way taking his time and working hard to get into shape. Eight hours work a day in a Jersey shipyard during part of the winter had not done Zimmerman any noticeable harm but like most of the veterans Zim rounds into shape slowly, and like most athletes of an aggressive nature who have a touch or two of temperament, Zim didn't give a tinker's rap what anybody thought about it. "Let them try displacing me at third base and there'll be a funeral for somebody," was the way Zim looked at it.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE FEAR WOMAN"—A drama of heredity with Pauline Frederick the celebrated actress, in the leading role is a powerful attraction today. An Helen Winthrop, the girl who gives up the man she loves because of fear lest an hereditary taint overcome her. Miss Frederick is by turns subtle, amazing, and at all times charming and real. Without doubt her role in the Iola Forrester drama is the most appealing of her many cinema characterizations. The most intense moments of the play are found at the magnificent dinner at which Helen Winthrop's engagement is announced and her father plunges down a flight of stairs, the smart though quiet marriage ceremony which progresses to the point where Helen refuses to wed the man she loves because of the terror in her heart, the curious love tangle in which she sacrifices her reputation to save the name of her dearest friend and, of course, the steadily mounting climax of the drama at the summer hotel whence Helen goes to seek for help. The denouement is a happy one and completely surprising. Miss Frederick is supported by Milton Sills, Harry S. Norrup, Emmett King and others. A selected comedy is also being shown.

THE SOISSON.

"THE JUNGLE TRAIL"—In which William Farnum is the sort of a hero every man and boy wants to be and that every girl and woman wants to have is being presented today. It is a story about a man who went to Africa to get the wherewithal to win a girl's hand and who was doubly crossed by a rival. It's a story of punch and power, suspense and thrill. Love interest develops from the start. We find Mary Lamar courted by Robert Morgan, favored but poor and by Philip Garson, disliked but rich. One shudders knowing about the plot to do away with Morgan when the latter joyfully accepts Garson's suggestion to go on a tiger hunting expedition. In Africa the plotters bribe the natives to revolt, fire the village and riddle Morgan with bullets. Morgan escapes by cutting his way out of the hut but is pursued to a lake, where he is shot and falls into the water. The plotters carry back word to America of Morgan's death, occasioning an intensely dramatic scene that culminates fatally for Morgan's aged mother and seems to pave the way for Garson's success as a suitor. After long wandering Morgan, exhausted comes to a great city inhabited by a strange people and is condemned to death. A mighty climax takes place when Morgan returns to America. A selected comedy is also being shown.

THE SOISSON.

"DADDY LONG LEGS"—The greatest picture in which Mary Pickford, the idol of the screen has ever appeared will be shown Monday and Tuesday. This is the first ever-reproduction ever made by Miss Pickford. "Daddy Long Legs" is filled with the most delicate and artistic imagery throughout. One of the best effective incidents deals with a comparison of the roaring of Judy (Mary Pickford) and Angelica Wyckoff, a spoiled rich child Judy despite cruel treatment, and bad living conditions in the asylum brings sunshine and aid to the smaller children. Angelica is symbolized as a hot house rose, beautiful because of intense cultivation but unable to stand the rigors of the ordinary out-of-doors. There is a pretty bit showing the court of Dan Cupid who sends forth his emissaries lights all is the performance of a dog who drinks part of a jug of applejack. A pruned strike led by Judy and a freckle-faced little boy is also a humorous feature. Supporting Miss Pickford are Maillon Hamilton, Marshall A. Neilan, Milla Davenport, Fay Lempert, Lillian Langdon, Audrey Chapman and Carrie Clarke Ward. All screen players of prominence. This is a production which the many admirers of Miss Pickford cannot afford to miss. It will please all members of the family.

Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs"

SATURDAY EVENING, JULY 19, 1914.

THE CURB MARKET.

If the curb market is not revived this year failure to do so will mark a distinct backward step in the progress Conneltsville made last year in the direction of bringing the market gardeners of the vicinity and consumers in the city into closer touch.

The success of this venture was not all that might have been but it was really greater than was to be expected under the circumstances of a late start and a very unsatisfactory growing season. The market supplied the needs of a large number of people and proved profitable to the gardeners who found it a means of quickly and easily disposing of their stocks with a large saving in time which gave them opportunity to follow out a more intensive gardening plan. The market never lacked for buyers, in fact there was almost always a greater demand than could be supplied.

Although there were some disadvantages to patrons they were glad of the opportunity to procure fresh, home-grown products and, on the whole, the market supplied in a very satisfactory way, need long felt in the community.

The degree of success attained the first year in every way warrants the continuation of the plan this year. If this is not done we cannot feel that we are adhering to our policy of putting across everything undertaken in the interest of the public.

JUST RECOGNITION.

The people who were entertained, instructed and delighted by the pageant either here or in Uniontown, are happy to have Mrs. J. French Kerr, chairman of the women's committee of the Home-Coming Celebration, express appreciation of the services rendered by those who contributed to the success of this remarkable feature of the occasion. In her thanks to the workers Mrs. Kerr has spoken the word many persons felt right to have said but preferred that it be expressed by some person sustaining a closer relation to the pageant management.

Incidentally it is felt that what has been said in recognition of the splendid achievements of the members of the pageant cast also applies to the members of the central committee, the general committee and other men and women through whose untiring zeal the success of events of last week is due.

By the same token the public just as willingly and just as generously extends its thanks and congratulations to Mrs. Kerr and the ladies associated with her, for the generosity, organizing skill and executive ability displayed in handling an undertaking very few men would have been willing to enter upon.

A GENERAL HOSPITAL.

Just what steps can be taken in the direction of establishing a general hospital in Conneltsville are not apparent; but that a meeting of citizens has been called by Chairman Hopper of the Conneltsville branch of the Red Cross to discuss the question indicates that there is at least a starting point from which some plan can be evolved.

That there is need for such an institution was emphasized so strongly during the influenza epidemic that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, the progress of which has been inseparably linked with that of Conneltsville for generations, came to the rescue of a stricken community and equipped the Macabee building as an emergency hospital. Through the generosity of this company, and the willing service of a number of self-sacrificing members of the Red Cross, it was possible to alleviate the suffering and distress in scores of homes and save many lives. No person is able to estimate what the result of the epidemic would have been had we been without this magnificent agent of mercy in our city.

Aware of these facts, the citizens who gather at the Red Cross rooms on Monday evening will no doubt give sympathetic and interested consideration to any plans that may be suggested in line with the object of the meeting. Any and every worthy project evidencing the progress of the community should have the attention of our public-spirited citizens. Concerning one of this nature it should be the desire of all to become informed both as to the possibilities of the proposition and the extent to which assistance can be rendered.

Fayette county will have a new interest in Baltimore office here that has an able representative as the executive head. In turn we expect this historic institution to have a new value to Fayette county.

Reviving the curb market is a 1914 that ought to appeal to some of the generals who have helped give Conneltsville a new place on the map in a variety of ways.

With the many new laws about which citizens need to be informed, there ought to be some better means available than the limited circulation of the Pamphlet Law which will not be published for a year or longer.

Union church services during the heated season ought to be a union of congregations as well as of pastors.

Uniontown did herself proud, but what Conneltsville did suffers nothing in comparison. It was all in honor of the boys, not of places.

Is the Senate or the President exemplifying "self determination" in those White House conferences?

The British presented General Pershing with a jeweled sword yesterday.
A deserving recognition and a fine compliment, to be sure, but Americans will regard President Wilson's suggestion that he be given the permanent rank of general as much more substantial and fitting.

Just to show their appreciation of the blessings of peace the Huns are trying to bushwhack American officers in Cologne. The leopard has nothing on the German in the matter of changing his markings or his heart.

Need of Uniform Divorce Laws

Robert Grant in Scribner.

That there is urgent need of a uniform divorce law and even more of a uniform marriage law to reconcile the diversities of our several states seems to be generally admitted and yet nothing dies harder in this country than local custom and prejudice concerning the legal formalities of matrimony and of its dissolution.

Those familiar with the subject are virtually in accord that there is little likelihood of securing the passage of a national constitutional amendment, and are resting their hopes on the gradual influence of the commissions on uniform state laws established over twenty years ago. The commissioners appointed from the several states have framed and recommended to the legislatures among other bills affecting all classes in the United States both a uniform marriage and a uniform divorce act, the former divided into two parts, a marriage license act approved by the conference of commissioners, August, 1911, and a marriage evasion act, approved August, 1912.

Nevertheless, up to 1913 the marriage license act has been adopted in only two out of fifty-one states and territories, the marriage evasion act in only five, and the uniform divorce act, approved 1907, in only three. In the summer of 1913 the uniform divorce act was subdivided by the conference of commissioners into two parts, one relating to practice and procedure, the other to annulment of marriage and to divorce. This is a pitiful showing from the point of view of readiness to subordinate community sentiment to a carefully considered code that would unify the laws in their application to family life from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

To be sure, the attention of the United States has been centered on the World War since 1914, yet in the interim a crusade to establish national prohibition has been successful, and numerous palliative measures in aid of social justice have been enacted.
But when inquiry is made why so little has been done to obliterate the interstate confusion which makes a wife in one jurisdiction a concubine or bigamist in another, we are told in the words of the commissioners that the legislators report, lack of public interest.

THOUSAND FIGHT FIRE

Conflagrations in Montana Forests Threaten Towns.

Special to The Courier.

SPOKANE, Wash. July 18.—Every available man in western Montana northern Idaho and eastern Washington is being employed by the federal forest service and the private protective associations to fight the forest fires in Montana and Idaho that today were threatening two western Montana towns and millions of feet of standing white pine.

High winds, abnormal high temperatures combined with parched forests are all but rendering the efforts of 1,000 men fighting the many forest fires useless. The towns threatened with destruction are Atherton and St. Regis in Montana.

Between 700 and 1,000 acres in the Helena forests are burning, ravaging some of the timber and destroying the old mining town camp of Jimtown, one and a half miles from York. The blaze has been burning for weeks, most of the time under control but Thursday's high winds spread it rapidly and meagre reports indicate the fighters are being beaten steadily backwards.

Dawson.

DAWSON, July 13.—The date set for the homecoming celebration for the soldier boys is Saturday, August 9. Quite a few of the boys have arrived home the past few days and by the big day rolls around it is expected that all of our boys will be home.

The New Motor Vehicle Law

(So many changes have been made in the motor laws of Pennsylvania by the motor vehicle act, approved June 30, 1918, that few motorists are aware of more than a few. A digest of the act's provisions will be published in The Courier in installments one each day. Motorists would do well to preserve the series for future reference.)

PART I. REGISTRATION.—The system of registration is the same as in the act of July 7, 1913, but includes bicycles operated by a motor attached thereto. The making of any misstatement in application constitutes a misdemeanor.

The owner of a motor vehicle must

NEW FREIGHT BILL WOULD GIVE ALL INLAND POINTS EQUAL RATES WITH TERMINAL CITIES

Senator Ponderexter

Inland towns and cities no longer will be compelled to pay higher railroad freight rates than terminal points if Senator Ponderexter's bill to amend the long and short haul clause in the Interstate Commerce law is passed by Congress.

Representatives of inland points, shippers and delegates from chambers of commerce are being heard by the Senate committee on interstate commerce. The bill was favorably reported at the last session of Congress but in the jam of war legislation failed of passage.

Relief from the discrimination of having to pay freight rates higher than charged at terminals will give hundreds of inland industrial cities equal opportunities in manufacturing competitions with the larger centers. It also will mean a revival of water transportation.

The Ponderexter bill takes away from the Interstate Commerce Commission all powers to permit discriminations against inland cities in favor of coast cities, by providing that no railroad henceforth shall receive any greater compensation for the transportation of passengers, or freight, for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line or route, in the same direction, or to charge any greater compensation as through route than the aggregate of the intermediate rates; nor is a common carrier authorized to receive as great compensation for shorter as for a longer distance.

The defense the railroads have offered in the past for their discriminations has been that it was impossible to compete with water transportation, either from ocean ports or inland points, without giving extremely low rates to such cities, oftentimes unprofitable. They had to make up their losses by overcharging inland cities and towns where there was no water competition. The railroads managed to destroy most of the water transportation on the rivers and to largely curtail coastwise ocean transportation.

greater horsepower than the old one. If one or both of the plates should be lost or stolen it is the duty of the owner to make application for new plates within 18 hours.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By G. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

Among the greatest sources of waste in the United States today is land. The latest reports show that this country, exclusive of our insular possessions, contains 1,900,000,000 acres of land of which about 1,140,000,000 acres are tillable. There is therefore an apparent waste of substantially 40 per cent. of the area of the country. Of course, much of this land can never be used for the purposes of man. Last year the amount of land planted in crops was 370,000,000 acres, which represents a gain of 24,000,000 acres in ten years.

When we look back over our record of the last two years and consider that a very large percentage of the people of the world have depended upon us for food, we are able to gain some idea of our possibilities. It is regrettable that, while food prices are very high throughout the world and thousands of people are actually starving to death, we have such a tremendous domain of food producing land absolutely going to waste in this country. In the development of these great natural resources lies one of the most splendid opportunities for thrift work in the United States and the contemplation of these facts certainly should make optimists of us all.

The population of the continental United States today is about 100,000,000. If we are only utilizing one-third of our tillable land, then we can triple our population and still feel that we have ample elbow-room. And what a nation this will be with 300,000,000 citizens! But our practices of thrift should and will extend not alone to the eventful cultivation of all the land that now is wasted. More intensive farming methods can be applied and the productivity of our present acreage can be tremendously increased. Improved scientific agriculture is making it possible for the American farmer and gardener to get an ever increasing amount of food from the land at his disposal. Small plots of ground which have gone to waste heretofore can be utilized, and the war-garden movement, which has been such a splendid source of additional food supply during the last two years, can be developed to almost unlimited possibilities.

There is a certain amount of social unrest throughout the world today. It has manifested itself in this country to some extent. But there is no reason for pessimism. There never was a time in the history of our country when the outlook could be viewed with as much gratification. But we must remember that our nation, to fulfill its greatest destiny, must practice thrift just as intemperately as we have during the war. We are in no danger from Bolshevism, and the best and surest weapon we can use in defending ourselves against this menace is thrift. As long as the people of America are willing to live sensibly and prudently, as long as they are willing to develop their great resources and practice broad, progressive, constructive thrift there will be no need for alarm for any other reason whatever.

With thrift as our national watchword our future is secure.

REBUILDING NATION'S FIGHTERS WHO WERE DISABLED IN WAR WITH HUN

Physical Training Which Played Its Part in Creating the Finest Army in the World Is Now Taking a Prominent Part in Restoring Our Soldiers to Self-Supporting Place in Civil Life.

LYON COE, HARRY E. MOORE

"Let's go," says Lyon Coe, the football player, the basketball player, the track star, the athlete, the man who has been in the front line of the nation's physical training movement.

Why? Because he has seen the need of it. He has seen the need of it in the physical training of the nation's fighters who were disabled in war with Hun.

Physical training has also had a definite part in the restoration of the nation's fighters who were disabled in war with Hun.

Work Among Convalescents. A great number of the physical trainers formerly assigned to combat divisions have been transferred to work among the convalescent soldiers.

In the wards, light setting-up exercises are given, but as soon as possible the patient is ordered out of doors to enter a little more strenuous training.

Week by week his progress is noted and work by week is promoted into a higher class—until, finally, the day when his maximum restoration will be attained, his hardening process completed, and he will be ordered up for discharge.

Physical training has come into its own during this war. It has developed tens of thousands of hollowness, scooped-shouldered, slouchy young men into upstanding, fearless, stalwart specimens of American manhood.

It has taught these men to go overseas and developed them to the point where they could go across or at least could do effective limited service and free other able-bodied men for combat service.

And now it is playing a most important part in rebuilding the nation's fighters who have become disabled in the strife.

$50,000 FOR COAT OF TAR

Texas Wins Verdict Against Eleven Who Feathered Him.

A verdict of $50,000 was obtained in the district court, San Antonio, Tex., by W. B. Kellar against eleven citizens of Luling, Caldwell county, in a damage suit growing out of the tarring and feathering of Kellar in May, 1918, at Luling.

Kellar sued for $50,000. His petition for damages alleged that on May 17, 1918, a number of citizens of Luling applied a coat of tar and feathers to him, and a banner bearing the inscription "Traitor—Others Take Warning" on him, marched him through the streets and ran him out of the county.

It is said the tar and feathers were applied because of reported abuse by Kellar of the Red Cross, the United States and American soldiers.

NEW AUTO TIRE FINDS FAVOR Claimed by Those Who Have Used It to Last Longer Than the Ordinary Make.

Manufacturers of automobile tires are keeping right to the front in the motor car industry. Buying new tires to replace the old worn-out and damaged ones is one of the chiefest sources of expense in the ownership and operation of an automobile.

Even with the lighter weight cars the tire cost per mile of travel is equal to, if not greater than, the cost of fuel and oil. With the heavy weight, high-priced cars using the larger size of tires, the tire cost per mile is often considerably more than is the cost of fuel and oil.

Herefore, the motorist who has been made up of a combination of woven canvas fabric and hard rubber. During the past five years there has come onto the market a new type of casing known as the "cord" tire, which is rapidly gaining favor with motorists, as they claim it is longer lived than is the canvas fabric casing.

In this new tire, instead of using a woven canvas fabric as a foundation, there is used a series of strong cotton cords or string. The claim is that these cords will not break up readily under the varying strains of country road usage, as will the woven fabric. It also means that when the fabric is worn or rotted out the tire is useless, he will see the importance of having this foundation material of the very best which is available and which can be used—Farming Business.

OBSTRUCTION IN FUEL PIPE Various Causes for This Annoying Trouble, but the Remedy is a Simple Matter.

Sometimes the vacuum tank of a fuel system remains dry when there is plenty of gasoline in the main tank. Generally this is due to foreign matter making its way into the fuel pipe between the two tanks and obstructing the passage of the liquid. When this is the case the simplest remedy consists in filling the float chamber of the carburetor with gasoline—usually drawn from the main tank—and then starting the engine. This will clear out the pipe line by suction nine times out of ten and the vacuum tank will begin operating again. Sometimes it is necessary to speed up the engine some what in order to loosen the obstruction.

Occasionally the cause of the trouble is the stoppage of the small air hole in the filler cap of the main fuel tank. This should be kept open to give play to the pressure of the atmosphere on the fuel.

PRESIDENT'S TOUR WILL COST MUCH

SPEAKING TRIP MAY BE SHORTENED BECAUSE OF HEAVY TRAVELING EXPENSES.

$25,000 FUND NOT ENOUGH

Formerly Our Chief Executives Always Accepted Transportation From the Railways, but That Was Changed by Colonel Roosevelt.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington—President Wilson is to stump the country in behalf of the covenant of the League of Nations. It has not yet been definitely decided, but the understanding is that some senatorial opponents of the league will take the field in an attempt to offset the president's arguments.

It has been intimated that it will be impossible for the president to make as long and arduous a journey as he might wish because of the necessary expense which attaches to travel of this kind.

There is at the disposal of the president of the United States each year $25,000 to be used for traveling expenses. This amount becomes available on July 1 of each succeeding year, but it is not sufficient to cover the traveling expenses of a president who wishes to talk to the people, or to travel on other official errands within the borders of the United States.

All presidents have found it necessary—and their decision in the matter apparently has been concurred in by the people—to take with them official parties, mainly composed of cabinet officers.

Will Use Up the Entire Fund. At times it has been necessary to charter a special train for the presidential party, but always it has been necessary to have a special car. Every president who travels must take with him secret service men, stenographers and typewriters. It always has cost a good deal to travel and in these days it costs more. The forthcoming trip of the president of the United States will use up every cent of the appropriation for such purposes and if the journey goes to the limit which the president presumably would like to fix, he will be compelled to pay a considerable sum out of his own pocket to make the end of the trip.

In the days up to the time that Theodore Roosevelt left the White House the presidents of the United States were compelled either to accept the courtesy of the railroads, or to pay for their official trips out of their pockets. There always has been a demand from the people that the presidents of the United States occasionally should meet them in their homes. Every president since railroads became a fact has felt that he must meet this demand. The result was that many of them used up a considerable part of their salaries in the payment of bills to railroads and to hotels.

It came to be recognized as proper, through sheer force of circumstances, that presidents of the United States should allow railroad companies to furnish them with transportation. This went against the grain of all the presidents, but virtually every one of them felt compelled to accept at least transportation from the railroads. The other expenses of the trip they met out of their personal pockets.

Changed by Colonel Roosevelt. When Theodore Roosevelt was president he came to the conclusion that the situation had become impossible. When he went on hunting trips to the West, although he was to fulfill official engagements going and coming, he always paid all the expenses, but he was compelled at times to accept the hospitality of the railroads. Thinking that this state of affairs should end he wrote a communication to congress urging that an appropriation be made to cover the legitimate traveling expenses of the president of the United States and his official advisers traveling with him when he was on business connected with the public welfare.

In order that there might be no criticism of his request from the point of view of those who would say that he was trying to make the people pay his personal bills, President Roosevelt asked that the appropriation for traveling expenses for the chief magistrate should not be made available until after he left office. So it was that President Taft became the first beneficiary of the appropriation of $25,000 a year for traveling expenses.

The symbol is if the people of the United States knew that the president, under the income tax law, has to pay more than one-third of his salary into Uncle Sam's treasury. Income taxation hits the president hard. The understanding is that he has to turn back to the treasury between twenty-five and thirty-five thousand dollars of the amount which the government grants him yearly as a salary. Taking this fact into consideration, it readily can be understood that it is almost impossible for a president of the United States today to pay the necessary travel bills, even with the $25,000 allowance which is granted him by congress.

It has cost all presidents much money to do the necessary official entertaining of the White House. During the last four years President Wilson has escaped some of this expense because properly, with war on in the world, there has been little entertaining at the executive mansion.

BANK CLOSES DOORS Demands on State Institution Force It to Quit Business.

By Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The North Penn bank, a state institution, closed its doors today. The bank's last report issued in June showed that it had deposits of $2,066,545, resources, $2,685,232, and loans and investments of $2,304,533.

The state banking department at Harrisburg said today that the closing of the bank was due to over extension of loans. It had been in a crippled condition for some time, Commissioner Fisher said, and when demands were made upon it it was forced to close. There is no suspicion of wrong doing the commissioner said.

PIPELESS CALORIC FURNACE

A Practical, Efficient Method of Heating Without Pipes Through Only One Register

What It Does

The CALORIC, the Original Patented Pipeless Furnace, heats your entire home, new or old, three rooms to eighteen, through one register.

The CALORIC heats uniformly and thoroughly. Whether your house be of the bungalow type, with all rooms on one floor, or two or three stories high—all the rooms will be warm and comfortable.

The CALORIC saves from one-third to one-half of your fuel. The same amount of coal, coke or wood which will heat two or three rooms with stoves, will heat the entire house through the CALORIC. Or, if you are now heating your entire house, the CALORIC will do the same work better with one-half to two-thirds as much fuel.

The CALORIC is easily and quickly installed in any home, new or old, and without interfering with your present heating system. Where there is no cellar, a pit can be dug large enough to hold the furnace and the fuel supply.

The CALORIC reduces fire risk, as all the heat comes up through the center of the register, while the cool air is constantly passing down through the outer part of the register, where it comes in contact with the floor.

Over fifty thousand enthusiastic owners from Portland, Maine to Portland, Oregon, testify that the CALORIC is and does all and more than we claim. The CALORIC is also giving splendid results in stores, factories, churches and halls. Can you afford not to investigate?

- and How It Does It

The CALORIC is not a pipe furnace with the pipes left off, and neither is it an experiment hastily put together for the purpose of meeting a demand. It is specially designed and built from the ground up to heat buildings more uniformly, economically and satisfactorily than they have ever been heated by other systems.

The CALORIC works through Nature's own laws of circulation by the movement of air currents. Warm air rises naturally. Cold air falls. Warm air and cold air cannot occupy the same space at the same time, any more than cold water and warm water can do so.

In the same volume that the warm air is distributed into the house, an equal amount of air currents, warm air rises naturally. Cold air falls. Warm air and cold air cannot occupy the same space at the same time, any more than cold water and warm water can do so.

Thus there is created a constant circulation of properly maintained warm air. Just as running water purifies itself, so this circulating warm air, passing constantly through heat of from three hundred to eight hundred degrees, in which it germ kills, is kept pure and healthful.

Now this is merely an outline of the principles of operation of the CALORIC. A full description is given in an interesting and instructive manual in our CALORIC Catalog. Call at our store, phone or write us for a copy.

The CALORIC is manufactured and guaranteed by The Monitor Stove Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, makers of heating appliances for 98 years.

HARRY DAVIS HAS BEEN MADE ASSISTANT MANAGER OF PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

Assistant Manager of Philadelphia Athletics.

Veteran Harry Davis has been coaxed out of his retirement and has been made assistant manager of the Athletics. Though his title is that of assistant manager it is understood he really is in full charge of the team and that Connie Mack hereafter will devote most of his time to business affairs of the club. Davis was Mack's right-hand man for ten years, then went to Cleveland for a brief period in 1912 and returned to Mack, remaining with him until the close of 1917. He is thoroughly acquainted with Mack's ideas and while they will be carried out, of course, with the baseball world will be much interested in seeing how Davis fares with more or less of a free hand. Davis will have as his lieutenant another veteran, Paddy Livingston, whose duty will be to coach the pitchers of the team.

Commercial Printing of all kinds Done at The Courier Job Printing Office.

A Few Hints for Laundering.

Using an old sheet double it as many times as it will cover the board. This will make four or five thicknesses, which are laid smoothly and tacked on the board all at once. When the top layer becomes soiled, it is cut off and there is the board with a clean cover.

When covering the ironing-board with a blanket or padding, tack it along the edges only, so that both sides and the ends are smoothly covered. Then make an unbleached ironing sheet the size of board, with large side and left open to slip on like a pillowcase. If well fitted, both sides of the board can be used; it will look neat and there will be no pins or nails to tear hands or clothing.

Useful Ironing Blanket. Make an ironing blanket for embroidered articles and lace from a square of white outing flannel, and one of Turkish toweling, neatly bound together. The Turkish side is used for faces and insertions, as the loose threads in ironing are forced up through the lace, while the other side is used for embroideries.

For Cleaning and Polishing Irons. Saturate a cloth with water, wring partially dry, rubbing soap thoroughly on it. Place on several thicknesses of paper. Rub iron over it several times, pressing hard, to remove starch and roughness. The result is surprising, as it makes the surface of iron perfectly clean and smooth.

This is the best and most economical way of cleaning irons, doing away with the use of ironing wax or any cleanser for irons.

A Handy Iron Cleaner. A very practical little contrivance for use when ironing consists of a block of wood about five inches square. Five holes are bored in this block and filled with beeswax. These are covered with a piece of muslin. The other side of the block is covered with emery cloth. The emery side of the block is used to rub the iron on it the starch sticks and the wax side gives the iron smoothness.

Old flat-irons become rusty, but a coat of aluminum enamel paint makes them neat and clean. No more flakes of rust or snags to drop off on white garments when ironing. They can be washed and the heat does not affect the enamel, as it is the kind used on radiators. One coat is sufficient, and a small can will do for coating a number of irons.

Julius Brumby

Both of them felt constantly the difference between this Christmas time and other Christmas times of theirs—in all, it was a sorrowful holiday. But when Isabel came East for George's commencement, in June, she brought Lucy with her—and things began to seem different, especially when George Amberson arrived with Lucy's father on class day. Eugene had been in New York, on business; Amberson easily persuaded him to this outing; and they made a cheerful party of it, with the new graduate of course the hero and center of it all.

"His uncle was a fellow alumnus. 'Yonder was where I roomed when I was here,' he said, pointing out one of the university buildings to Eugene. 'I don't know whether George would let my admirers place a tablet to mark the spot, or not. He owns all these buildings now, you know.'

"Didn't you, when you were here? Like uncle, like nephew."

"I'm sure I didn't have it so badly at his age," Amberson said reflectively, as they strolled on through the commencement crowd.

Eugene laughed. "You need only three things to explain all that's good and bad about George."

"Three?"

"He's Isabel's only child. He's an Amberson. He's a boy."

"Well, Mister Bones, of these three things which are the good ones and which are the bad ones?"

"All of them," said Eugene.

George took no conspicuous part in either the academic or the social celebrations of his class; he seemed to regard both sets of exercises with a tolerant amusement, his own "crowd" not going in much for either of these sorts of things," as he explained to Lucy. What his crowd had gone in for remained ambiguous; some negligent testimony indicating that, except for an astonishing reliability which they all seemed to have attained in matters relating to musical comedy, they had not gone in for anything. Certainly the question one of them put to Lucy, in response to investigations of hers, seemed to point that way: "Don't you think," he said, "really, don't you think that being things is rather better than doing things?"

He said "rather better" for "rather better," and seemed to do it deliberately, with perfect knowledge of what he was doing. Later, Lucy looked back to George, and George refused to smile; he was somewhat inclined to such pronouncements, himself. This inclination was one of the things that he had acquired in the four years.

What else he had acquired, it might have puzzled him to state, had anybody asked him and required a direct reply within a reasonable space of time. He had learned how to pass examinations by "cranking"; that is, in three or four days and nights he could get into his head enough of a selected fragment of some scientific or philosophical or literary or linguistic subject to reply plausibly to six questions out of ten. He could retain the information necessary for such a feat just long enough to give a successful performance; then it would evaporate utterly from his brain, and leave him undisturbed. George, like his "crowd," not only preferred "being things" to "doing things," but had contented himself with four years of "being things" as a preparation for going on "being things." And when Lucy rather shyly pressed him for his friend's probable definition of the "things" it seemed so superior and beautiful to be, George raised his eyebrows slightly, meaning that she should have understood without explanation; but he did explain: "Oh, family and all that—being a gentleman, I suppose."

Lucy gave the horizon a long look, but offered no comment.

"Aunt Fanny doesn't look much better," George said to his mother, a few minutes after their arrival, on the night they got home. "Doesn't she get over it at all? I thought she'd feel better when we turned over the insurance to her—gave it to her absolutely, without any strings to it. She looks about a thousand years old."

"She looks quite girlish, sometimes, though," his mother said.

"Has she looked that way much since a father?"

"Not so much," Isabel said thoughtfully. "But she will, as time goes on." "Time'll have to hurry, then, it seems to me," George observed, returning to his own room.

When they went down to the dining room, he pronounced acceptable the salmon salad, cold beef, cheese and cake which Fanny made ready for them without disturbing the servants. The journey had fatigued Isabel, she ate nothing, but sat to observe with dried pleasure the manifestations of her son's appetite, meanwhile giving her sister-in-law a brief summary of the events of commencement. But presently she kissed them both good night and left aunt and nephew alone together.

"It never was becoming to her to look pale," Fanny said absently, a few minutes after Isabel's departure. "I suppose your mother's been being pretty good? Going a lot?"

"How could she?" George asked absently. "In mourning, of course all she could do was just sit around and look on. That's all Lucy could do either, for the matter of that."

"I suppose so," his aunt assented. "Now did Lucy get home? Did you drive to her house with her before you came here?"

"No. She drove home with her father, of course."

"Oh, I see. So Eugene came to the station to meet you?"

"To meet us?" George echoed, knowing his attack upon the salmon salad. "How could he?"

"I don't know what you mean," Fanny said cheerily, in the desolate voice that had become her habit. "I haven't seen him while your mother's been away."

"Naturally," said George. "He's been East himself."

At this Fanny's drooping eyelids opened wide.

"Did you see him?"

"Well, naturally, since he made the trip home with us."

Fanny's eyelids drooped, and she sat silent until George pushed back his chair and lit a cigarette, declaring his satisfaction with what she had provided. "You're a fine housekeeper," he said benevolently. "I don't believe you'd stay single very long if some of the bachelors and widowers around town could just once see—"

She did not hear him. "It's a little odd," she said.

"What's odd?"

"Your mother's not mentioning that Mr. Morgan had been with you."

"Didn't think of it, I suppose," said George carelessly; and, his benevolent mood increasing, he conceived the idea that a little harmless rallying might serve to elevate his aunt's drooping spirits. "I'll tell you something, in confidence," he said solemnly.

She looked up, startled. "What?"

"Well, it struck me that Mr. Morgan was looking pretty absent-minded, most of the time; and he certainly is dressing better than he used to. I shouldn't be a bit surprised if all the young fellows had been waiting for was to know he had an assured income before he proposed."

"What young fellow?"

"This young fellow Morgan," laughed George. "Honestly, Aunt Fanny, I shouldn't be a bit surprised to have him request an interview with me any day, and declare that his intentions are honorable, and ask my permission to pay his addresses to you. What had I better tell him?"

Fanny burst into tears.

"Good heavens!" George cried; "I was only teasing. I didn't mean—"

"Let me alone," she said listlessly; and, continuing to weep, rose and began to clear away the china and silver.

George was distressed. "I didn't mean anything, Aunt Fanny! I didn't know you'd get so sensitive as all that."

"You'd better go up to bed," she said desolately, going on with her work and her weeping.

He obeyed, and could still hear a pathetic sniffing from the dining room as he went up the stairs.

"By George!" he grunted, as he reached his own room; and his thought was that living with a person so sensitive to kindly rallying might prove lugubrious. He went to the window and looked through the darkness to the great silhouette of his grandfather's house. Lights were burning over there, upstairs; probably his newly arrived uncle was engaged in talk with the Major.

George's glance lowered, resting casually upon the indistinct ground, and he beheld some vague shapes, unfamiliar to him. Formless heaps, they seemed; but, without much curiosity, he supposed that sewer connections or water pipes might be out of order, making necessary some excavations. Not greatly disturbed, he pulled down the shade, yawned, and began to undress, leaving further investigation for the morning.

But in the morning he had forgotten all about it, and raised his shade, to let in the light, without even glancing toward the ground. Not until he had finished dressing did he look forth from his window, and then his glance was arrested. The next instant his attitude became electric, and he ran from his room plunged down the stairs, out of the front door, and upon a nearer view of the destroyed lawn, began to renege profusely upon the breezeless summer air, which remained unaffected. Between his mother's house and his grandfather's excavations for the cellars of five new houses were in process, each within a few feet of his neighbor.

It was Sunday, and so the workmen implicated in these detracings were doing what unquestionably they would have considered a treat; but as the fanatic orator continued the monologue, a gentleman in fannels emerged upward from one of the excavations, and regarded him contemptively.

"Obtaining any relief, nephew?" he inquired with some interest. "You must have learned quite a number of those expressions in childhood—it's so long since I'd heard them I fancied they were obsolete."

"Who wouldn't swear?" George demanded hotly. "What does grandfather mean, doing such things?"

"My private opinion is," said Amberson gravely, "he desires to increase his income by building these houses to rent."

"Well, in the name of heaven, can't he increase his income any other way but this?"

"In the name of heaven, it would appear he couldn't," said the gentleman. "It's a business; it's a damn degradation! It's a crime!"

"I don't know about its being a crime," said his uncle, stepping over some planks to join him. "It might be a mistake, though. Your mother said not to tell you until we got home, so as not to spoil commencement for you. She rather feared you'd be upset."

"Upset! Oh, my Lord, I should think I would be upset! He's in this mood all the time!"

"Well, I thought, myself, it was a mistake. I wanted him to put up an apartment building instead of these houses."

"Who Wouldn't Swear?" George Demanded Hotly.

"An apartment building! Here?"

"Yes; that was my idea."

George struck his hands together despairingly. "An apartment house! Oh, my Lord!"

"Don't worry! Your grandfather wouldn't listen to me, but he'll wish he had, some day. He sticks it out that apartment houses will never do in a town of this type, and when I pointed out to him that a dozen or so of 'em already are doing, he claimed it was just the novelty, and that they'd all be empty as soon as people got used to 'em. So he's putting up these houses."

"Is he getting miserly in his old age?"

"Hardly! Look what he gave Sydney and Amelia!"

"I don't mean he's a miser, of course," said George. "But why on earth didn't he sell something or other rather than do a thing like this?"

"As a matter of fact," Amberson returned coolly, "I believe he has sold something or other, from time to time."

"I suppose you're joking—or trying to."

"That's the best way to look at it," Amberson said amiably. "Take the whole thing as a joke—and in the meantime, if you haven't had your breakfast—"

"I haven't."

"Then if I were you I'd go in and get some. And—paused, becoming serious—"and if I were you I wouldn't say anything to your grandfather about this."

"I don't think I could trust myself to speak to him about it," said George.

"I want to treat him respectfully, because he is my grandfather, but I don't believe I could if I talked to him about such a thing as this."

And with a gesture of despair, plainly signifying that all too soon after leaving bright college years behind him, he had entered into the full tragedy of life, George turned bitterly upon his heel and went into the house for his breakfast.

His uncle, with his head whimsically upon one side, gazed at him not altogether unsympathetically. Being a philosopher, he was not surprised, that afternoon, in the course of a drive he took in the old carriage with the Major, when George was encountered upon the highway flashing along in his rumble with Lucy beside him and Pendergast doing better than three minutes.

"He seems to have recovered," Amberson remarked.

"I beg your pardon."

"Your grandson," Amberson explained. "He was inclined to melancholy this morning, but seemed jolly enough just now when they passed us."

"What was he melancholy about? Not getting removed about all the money he's spent at college, was he?" The Major chuckled feebly, but with sufficient grimness. "I wonder what he thinks I'm made of," he concluded querulously.

"Gold," his son suggested, adding gently, "and he's right about part of you, father."

"What part?"

"Your heart."

The Major laughed ruefully. "I suppose that may account for how heavy it feels, sometimes, nowadays. This town seems to be rolling right over that old heart you mentioned, George—rolling over it and burying it under! When I think of those devilish workmen digging up my lawn, yelling around my house—"

"Never mind, father. Don't think of it. When things are a nuisance it's a good idea not to keep remembering 'em."

"I try not to," the old gentleman murmured. "I try to keep remembering that I won't be remembering anything very long." And, somehow convinced that this thought was a faithful one, he laughed loudly and slapped his knee. "Not so very long now, my boy!" he chuckled, continuing to echo his own amusement. "Not so very long. Not so very long!"

CHAPTER XII.

Young George paid his respects to his grandfather the following morning, having been occupied with various affairs and engagements on Sunday until after the Major's bedtime; and topics concerning with building or excavations were not introduced into the conversation, which was a cheerful one until George lightly mentioned some new plans of his. He spoke of his desire to extend his proficiency in driving; in fact, he entertained the ambition to drive a four-in-hand. However, as the Major said nothing, and merely sat still, looking surprised, George went on to say that he did not propose to "go in for coaching just at the start," he thought it would be better to begin with a tandem. He was sure Pendergast could be trained to work as a leader; and all that one needed to buy at present, he said, would be "comparatively inexpensive—a new trap, and the harness, of course, and a good bay to match Pendergast. He did not care for a special groom; one of the stablemen would do.

At this point the Major decided to speak. "You say one of the stablemen would do?" he inquired, his widened eyes remaining fixed upon his grandson. "That's lucky, because one's all there is just at present, George. Old fat Tom does it all."

"Oh, that will be all right, sir. My mother can lend us her man."

"Can she?" The old gentleman smiled faintly. "I wonder—" He paused.

"What, sir?"

"Whether you mightn't care to go to law school somewhere perhaps I'd be glad to set aside a sum that would see you through."

This gentle divergence from the topic in hand surprised George painfully. "I have no interest whatever in the law," he said. "I don't care for it, and the idea of being a professional man has never appealed to me. I was speaking of driving a tandem."

"I know you were," said the Major quietly.

George looked hurt. "I beg your pardon. Of course if the idea doesn't appeal to you—" And he rose to go.

The Major ran a tremulous hand through his hair, sighing deeply. "I—I don't like to refuse you anything, George," he said. "I don't know that I often have refused you whatever you wanted—in reason—"

"You've always been more than generous, sir," George interrupted quickly. "And if the idea of a tandem doesn't appeal to you, why—of course—" And he waved his hand, heretically dismissing the tandem.

BESPECTACLED HURLER HILL

Carmen Hill of Pittsburgh Pirates Finds Glasses Are No Handicap While Playing.

Carmen Hill, bespectacled hurler of the Pittsburgh Pirates, like Leo Meadows who wears 'em when in action for the Cards, finds the glasses are no handicap whatever. Incidentally Carmen promises to be one of the best young right-handers in the National league and Hugo Bezdek the Pirate chief is pursuing him with infinite care in the hope he will be able to take his regular turn on the mound later in the race. Hill and Meadows are the only two players in the majors today who wear glasses while putting. Both have worn them since boyhood, having weak eyes, but neither has ever been handicapped by the specs when fielding hard-hit balls.

LIBERTY BONDS.

Will Always Be a Desirable Investment.

Government bonds issued during the Civil War advanced 39 points. Spanish War bonds paying only three per cent, sold as high as 1112 Uncle Sam always pays. Some day Liberty and Victory bonds will go above par. Better acquire a few now. You can join the First National Bank's bond club and pay for them in installments if you wish. By Colonel Arthur Woods, Assistant to the Secretary of War.

Our work of getting positions for discharged soldiers and sailors has gotten away to a good start. All over the United States the War Department is securing the hearty co-operation of all the welfare services, Chambers of Commerce, labor unions, employers' associations, and many national, state, and civic bodies, all of whom are at liberty to use the machinery of the United States Employment Service towards hooking up the discharged men of the Army and Navy with a good job.

We have also had the patriotic assistance of employers, corporations, firms, and individuals, in the matter of reinstating their old men in the jobs they held before they went to war. I may also say that between 70 per cent and 80 per cent of our honorably discharged soldiers and sailors have the offer of their pre-war jobs. The hero of today is not to become the hobnob of tomorrow. Until everyone of these returning men is back in his old job or a better one we have not discharged our whole duty towards them.

In this work of placing our soldiers and sailors we have been joyfully co-operated with by the great majority of American employers. It is a credit to the War and Navy departments who have prepared a handsome citation, which is issued to all employers who have assured the departments that they will gladly re-employ everybody who formerly worked with them and left to serve in the Army or Navy during the Great War. This citation carries with it permission for the holder to display on his firm's service flag the shield of the United States as a symbol that he will fulfill his obligations to the men who went to the defense of the country at the time of its peril.

The citation is signed by the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and myself as assistant to the Secretary of War. It is hand-embossed and engraved with the name of the recipient. There are 25 citations to it. All we ask is that the employer write an application for such a citation, stating that he will re-employ his old service men, and address me in care of the War Department, Washington, D. C.

MOTORTRUCK FEES DIFFER

No General Understanding, Throughout the Country as to Rate to Be Paid.

At the beginning of 1919 there were still 22 states in which motortrucks were registered at the same rate as pleasure cars. Recent years, however, have shown quite a general tendency to increase the fees required for heavy motortrucks. This increase usually is based on the weight of the truck, its carrying capacity, or a combination of its carrying capacity and its horsepower. However, there is as yet no evidence of any well-defined general trend toward which this movement is tending. Some states are placing a definite maximum weight which may not be exceeded except in very special cases; others are evidently relying on discouraging or limiting the use of very heavy trucks by making the registration fees so large as to practically prevent the realization of any profit; while still other states are making no serious efforts except to limit the weight of the wheel loads per inch width of tire. The terms motortruck and commercial vehicle, moreover, are very definite. In some states the term commercial vehicle as used includes all trucks, while in others only those vehicles used for hire are classed as commercial.

HUNTERS' GREEN ARM TAGS TO BE READY AUGUST 1

State Will Rush Printing of Licenses For Opening of Blackbird Season.

EXPECTING BIG DEMAND

Last Year Over 800,000 Were Issued But With Thousands of Service Men Back That Figure Should Be Exceeded in 1919; Get Earlier Start.

HARRISBURG, June 19.—Hunters' license arm bands are now in the hands of the state printer under a rush order so that they will be ready for issue to men who want to hunt blackbirds on August 1. Heretofore, killing these birds has not been legal until September 1.

The 1919 tags will be green in color. It is the intention to send them out to county treasurers as rapidly as possible so that they can be issued promptly. Last year there were over 800,000 hunters' licenses taken out but with thousands of soldiers and sailors now out of the service it is believed that figure will be exceeded in 1919.

The Bureau of Foods of the State Department of Agriculture is getting ready to enforce the new law governing handling of rotten eggs, which are extensively used in this state for tanning operations. Under the new law no rotten eggs can be opened in buildings where good eggs are handled or where food products are manufactured. Rotten eggs when removed from the shell for manufacturing purposes must be placed in containers painted bright red and such containers cannot be used for wholesome eggs under any circumstances.

Governor William C. Sprull has been asked to take early action in regard to the State Commission on Old Age Pensions, which was authorized by the recent legislature to be continued. A series of new studies of systems in foreign countries and as tried in this state will be undertaken, according to plans made.

BASEBALL STORIES

Bill Wattaker is having a great season with Fort Worth.

Buck Weaver is traveling with some speed this season.

The University of Virginia baseball team made a profit of $2,421.07 this year.

Bobby Roth is playing a great game for the Blacks and is immensely popular with the fans.

Lefty Schorr, a pitcher who started the season with Salt Lake, has been taken on by Seattle.

Del Pratt, Yankee second baseman, is playing a greatly improved game since the Yanks returned home.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have not been hitting to brag about, but this feature of their play is improving steadily.

Pat Don Carlos Ragan, now a Giant, once was considered quite a Giant tamer. That was when he was with Brooklyn.

Pittsfield's heaviest loss is in the absence of Catcher Devine, who has been out of the game with an attack of appendicitis.

Horace Allen, an infielder who gained fame as a player of Georgia Tech. in Atlanta, has been signed by the Dodgers.

The playing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" in ball parks reveals the melancholy fact that Mr. Emslie has more hair than Mr. Klam.

Hooks Warner, back from overseas and out of the army, is practicing with the Pirates and hoping something will happen to permit him to stay on the team.

Lee Meadows of the Cardinals is still one of the best six or seven inning pitchers in the National league. He has been that for three or four years.

Providence used to think it had a corner on Brown University athletes but New Haven now claims two. One is Claude Davidson and the other Billy Murray.

Sam Lewis, claimed by Shreveport and thus rescued from exile to the Three-I league, has shown his appreciation by doing good work for Billy Smith's team.

Voluntary contributions to a fund to erect a memorial to Capt. Eddie Grant, will be received by John B. Foster, traveling secretary of the Giants. Grant was the only officer among ball players killed in France.

Ed Pfeffer, who has been going great guns for the Brooklyn club, attributes his condition to the ten-day boiling, out-purged, put in at Hot Springs before he joined the Dodgers in training.

VAGRANTS OF DISTANT INDIA FIND AID AND REHABILITATION AT SALVATION ARMY HOME

Salvation Army Charges in India.

The Salvation Army, which is about to launch a campaign for $13,000,000 to be devoted to relief of the poor in the United States, recognizes neither creed nor color nor boundary lines. The Salvation Army is represented in sixty countries speaking thirty-seven languages. Where the opportunity for service among the needy exists there goes the Salvation Army. Recently the full management of the problems of the poor in India has been turned over to the Army by the Government. The task there is one of great magnitude and almost disheartening difficulties. Dense population, periods of famine and the evils which accompany such conditions are but a few of the problems which the Salvation Army must combat. The Salvation Army will go before the American public with a request for $13,000,000 to aid it in carrying on its work at home, the week of May 19-26.
